

Clark Faculty go Beyond the Classroom for new lecture event series

There are plenty of lessons to be learned outside of the classroom. Join Clark faculty members as they delve into pressing issues such as climate change, social injustice and health and food insecurities by offering honest, essential conversations during Beyond the Classroom: A Clark Faculty Lecture Series. Registration is open to alumni, parents, students and friends. There will be four sessions held between October 8- November 5: Masculinities, Racism, and Militarized Policing: Feminists Investigate on October 8, Crisis and Resilience: Parenting, Relationships, and Divorce During COVID-19 on October 15, The 2020 Elections and the Future of American Political Parties on October 28, and Tracking the Gendered Politics of a Global Pandemic on November 5.

Cougar Challenge is Back - October 21-23

Show your support for our student-athletes during the Cougar Challenge 2020, October 21-23. Last year, over 1,700 alumni, parents, students and friends helped to raise over $105,000 for our student athletes. This year, they need your help more than ever. Despite the absence of games this fall, our students are still working hard at practice so they are ready to compete when games resume.

Sam Segal '21 works to improve youth education

Sam Segal '21 used an internship this summer with Rep. David LeBoeuf, D-Worcester, to help improve youth education in Massachusetts. The political science major was eager to begin working on bill aimed at improving educational outcomes for children in the foster care system, and researched legislation that would establish a universal pre-K program in Massachusetts.

The Clark experience is an irreplaceable one that has helped forge successful paths for so many of our alumni. Despite the current COVID-19 pandemic, we are deeply dedicated to ensuring our current students receive the same once-in-a-lifetime experience as those who came before them. But, we can't do it alone.
