The National Museum of History and Art (MNHA)

https://www.mnha.lu/

Open to the public since 1946, the National Museum of History and Art is the oldest public museum in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg. Our collection dates back to the time when Luxembourg gained independence from the Netherlands and established itself as an independent state following the London Conference in 1839. The collection has been continuously expanded, documented and studied ever since and is now the most important collection about the country’s history and art history. It is on show at the museum’s three sites, attracting around 130,000 visitors from all over the world every year.
